
The status of ESA's Science Programme

Luigi Colangeli*¹

¹European Space Research and Technology Centre – Netherlands

Abstract

The Science Directorate is in charge of developing the "Science Mandatory Programme". Both long-term science planning and mission calls are bottom-up processes, relying on broad community input and peer review. I will present the status of the Science Programme in terms of missions in operation, under development and for study, with particular emphasis on those dedicated to study the Solar System and the potential perspectives of visiting Ice Giants.

Keywords: ESA Science Programme

*Speaker